Proloquo2Go (Communication) Trials

What do Proloquo2Go Trials Look Like?

The Proloquo2Go assistive communication application is available for 2-week trials on either an iPad or iPod Touch. At the start of the trial period, a Footsteps of Change, Inc. clinician meets with the family to set up the software for the needs of the individual and to teach them how to use and edit the program. At the end of this meeting, the family keeps the iPad/iPod to see if it is a good fit. At the end of the trial, the clinician meets with the family again to talk about their experience with the program and to pick up the iPad/iPod.

What is the Cost?

The 2-week trial is billed with a one-time fee of $75.00 at the end of the trial period. This fee includes program customization, the initial meeting, trial consultation, and the follow up meeting. There is also a refundable deposit of $300/$100 for the iPad/iPod.

What if I Need More Time?

It may be possible for families to keep the device longer than 2 weeks, depending on the wait list for loans at the end of the initial 2 weeks. If others are waiting, the device will need to be returned and the family can be placed on the waiting list for additional time.

Additional fees will only be charged for extra time if the clinician has to re-setup the program or has to make additional trips to the family for further assistance.

What if I Want Help Teaching my Child to Use the Device?

Footsteps of Change offers services for teaching individuals to independently use the Proloquo2Go software; however, those services are not part of the 2-week trial. If interested, families can utilize FOC's parent training model (which is billed at an hourly rate)
